Description

On arrival, guests are greeted by a charming path lined with lavender and pine trees that leads directly to the estate.

A guided tour of the large garden awaits visitors, which not only offers inspiring impressions but also shows the diversity of the estate. This includes organic eggs and encounters with the endearing animals: Sheep, chickens and two small Shetland ponies, which give the place a charming, welcoming atmosphere. Families with children in particular enjoy feeding the animals and relaxed walks with the ponies, which is fun for young and old alike.

Finca Romero is a farm that produces almonds, redcurrants, olives and honey from its own beehives. The estate's olives provide high-quality, home-produced olive oil, which offers guests an authentic farm-to-table experience. The estate follows the principle of organic self-sufficiency and has extensive fruit and vegetable gardens, herb gardens as well as strawberry and berry gardens.

The main residence, which extends over 490 square metres, impresses with its Mediterranean charm and stylish furnishings. With four bedrooms, each with its own bathroom, air conditioning for the summer and underfloor heating for the winter, the house offers plenty of space for relaxing and socialising. A spacious dining area, a well-equipped country kitchen, a cosy living room, a games room and two TV lounges ensure that every need is catered for.

An orangery with a large dining area and a separate lounge area extends the opportunities to enjoy nature and outdoor living.

Other amenities include a tennis court, table tennis, basketball hoop, trampoline, e-mountain bikes, Apple TV in the TV lounges and a spa. Yoga classes and personal training are available on request to make your stay at Finca Romina even more relaxing and revitalising.
